WOMAN AND HOME

Under this department receipts, ideas, experiences and information of interest are solicited

For Card Parties
 Cheese and Citron Sandwich.—One Neufchatel cheese, three tablespoons of citron and a few grains of salt. Put the citron through a meat grinder twice, mix with the cheese and add the salt. Spread on one side thinly sliced bread and on the other side butter.

Cheese and Olive Sandwich.—Take a Neufchatel cheese and two tablespoons of finely chopped olives and mix together with just enough milk to make a smooth paste. Spread on a slice of brown bread.

Cheese and Nut Sandwich.—One Neufchatel cheese and two tablespoons of finely chopped English walnuts. Mix cheese and ground or seeded nuts with just enough milk to make a smooth paste that will spread easily. Spread one thin slice of bread with butter and the other with cheese paste, press together and cut into fancy shapes.

Cheese and Cherry Sandwich.—One Neufchatel cheese, one tablespoonful of finely chopped cherries and one tablespoonful of chopped citron. Mix cheese, cherries and citron with just enough milk to make a smooth paste. Spread one thin slice of bread with butter and the other with cheese paste, press together and cut into fancy shapes.

Cheese and Parsley Sandwich.—One Neufchatel cheese, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a dash of paprika, a dash of white pepper, and a pinch of salt. Mix the cheese, parsley, salt, pepper and paprika together with just enough milk to make a smooth paste. Spread one thin slice of bread with butter and the other with cheese paste. Press together and cut into fancy shapes.

Peanut Kisses.—Shell a half pint of peanuts, removing the brown hulls, and chop rather fine. Beat the whites of four eggs to a stiff froth, but not dry, add carefully two cups of granulated sugar, stir in the nuts and drop by teaspoon on oiled paper. Bake in a moderate oven till a delicate brown.

His Term
 "Have you been married for long?" asked the gabby party.
 "No," responded his neighbor, "just life."—Buffalo Express.

Garnishes for Soup
 The garnishes for soup will often make an otherwise common soup quite out of the ordinary.
Marrow Balls.—Take a tablespoonful of finely cut marrow, three tablespoonfuls of fine bread crumbs, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, salt and pepper to taste. Work to a smooth paste, adding a little raw egg if needed to make it smooth. Form in balls the size of a filbert, drop into the boiling soup and simmer about fifteen minutes.

Spinach Balls.—Take on equal bulk of finely chopped cooked spinach and very fine bread crumbs. Season highly with pepper, salt and cayenne. Add enough egg white to moisten well, then let stand to stiffen. Shape in balls the size of hickory nut; poach in the hot soup for five minutes and serve four to each plate.

Sponge Balls.—Put the whites of two eggs into a cup, fill the cup with milk, and pour the contents into a stewpan; add a cupful of flour and two tablespoonfuls of butter, stir well over the fire until the batter is thick and smooth; set to cool, after which stir into it the two yolks, a few dashes of salt, a little mace and drop into the boiling soup, a teaspoonful at a time. Cook eight minutes.

Force-meat Balls.—Scrape enough raw lean veal or chicken to make a half pound. Soak half a cupful of bread crumbs, free from crust, in milk; when soft squeeze dry; add four tablespoonfuls of butter, the scraped meat and the yolks of two eggs, pound the whole smooth and force through a coarse sieve. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Form between two teaspoonfuls into almond shaped balls; cook about ten minutes in stock that just simmers.

Ham may be used as above, with parsley and onion juice, leaving out the salt and nutmeg. Pound to a paste and the sifting may be omitted. Shape into large balls and cook in stock. They should be as light as a sponge and may be served with any soup.

Why He Liked It
 A Scotchman and an Irishman met in the country one day and during their conversation a motor car passed by; the Scotchman said he hated the smell of a motor car; but Paddy said he liked it.
 "Why?" said the Scotchman, and Paddy said when he smelt it he knew danger was past.

He Hadn't Heard
 Teacher—"Where is the Dead sea?"
 Tommie—"Don't know ma'am."
 "Don't know where the Dead sea is?"
 "No ma'am. I didn't even know any of the seas were sick, ma'am."

Two Classes
 To the pedestrian humanity seems to be divided into two classes: the careless and the careless.—Judge.

Sunday School Convention
 The 66th Annual State Sunday School convention will be held at Holland November 15, 16, 17, 1916. The music will be in charge of John Vandersluijs, Prof. E. O. Sellers, and S. H. Meyers. Among the speakers will be Bishop J. C. Hartzell, Rev. A. R. Atwood, Rev. Dr. Henry H. Meyer, Cynthia Pearl Maus, Harry G. Rowe, Wilbur F. Crafts, Dr. John G. Benson, Mrs. H. M. Leyda, William A. Brown, E. K. Warren, Rev. F. Howard Taylor, Dr. Henry Beet, F. C. Lindemann and Grant M. Hudson.

A great feature of the convention will be a parade on Friday morning, November 17. Programs of the convention can be obtained from F. S. Goodrich, state secretary, Albion, Mich.

Resolutions of Condolence
 Whereas, it has pleased the all-wise Father of the universe through the death messenger, to call from our lodge, and its membership, Sister Amelia Cooley, to the supreme lodge above, where friendship, love and truth will ever abide.

Therefore, be it Resolved, That in her passing away Victoria Lodge No. 60, Daughters of Rebekah, mourn the loss of a most loyal and highly respected member, who was ever ready to fill her place in the lodge and the social gatherings of the order, and exemplify by her life its teachings and principles.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the records of the lodge and also be published.

BANNER FASHION HINTS

THIS HAT IS A CHIC ONE.

Gold colored velvet set in tiers, a huge brim and two ribbon "fancies" held by a pair of gilt crescents—such are the materials that fashion this smart sailor.

Doing the Man's Part
 "You admit you overheard the quarrel between the defendant and his wife?"

"Yes, sir, I do," stoutly maintained the witness.

"Tell the court, if you can, what he seemed to be doing."

"He seemed to be doin' the listenin'."

Congressman Jos. W. Fordney Tells of Workings of Tariff

We now have a Democratic tariff law on our statute books. Under its operation 70 per cent of all the foreign made goods brought to this country are admitted to the American markets free of duty. A large proportion of the male labor of Europe is in the trenches. What will happen when the millions of men on the battlefields return home and seek employment? That there will be a surplus of labor but few will deny. A labor surplus means low wages and low costs of production. There will be an abundance of low priced products in the European countries for which a market must be found, and America will be the most desirable of markets in the world. The conclusion of peace will immediately throw our ports open to an immense foreign trade. With the present low tariff rates in force, the product of the poorly paid labor of Europe will come to our shores and can and will undersell goods "Made in America." At the termination of the war, the necessity for an adequate protective tariff law will be greater than ever before in our history.

It is the theory of the present administration that we should encourage the importation of foreign made goods, and that any industry which cannot exist in this country and compete, successfully, in an open market with foreign goods, should be wiped

Failed to Report—Arrested

St. Johns.—Michael Smith of Westphalia was arrested on the charge of failure to report hog cholera on his farm. There were 21 hogs that died from the disease and 39 others were affected. The first cases developed about three weeks ago, the disease probably being brought across the county line from Ionia county, where there are several cases. Mr. Smith appeared before Justice Flynn, plead guilty and was fined $10 and costs amounting to $7.50, in default not to exceed 20 days in the county jail. He paid the fine.

Council Proceedings (OFFICIAL)

Council Chambers, nine o'clock a. m., October twenty-sixth, nineteen sixteen.

Council called to order by Mayor Knapp. Roll call: present, Ald. Totten, Brown, Sayles, McCue—4; absent, Ald. Barker, Crawford—2.

This special meeting of the common council called for the purpose of hearing any suggestions or objections regarding the construction of Subdivision "K" of Sewer District No. 2, of the city of Belding.

There being no suggestions or objections offered at four-thirty o'clock p. m., it was moved by Ald. Brown, seconded by Ald. McCue, that the common council of the city of Belding do now adjourn. Motion prevailed: yeas, Ald. Totten, Brown, Sayles, McCue—4; nays, 0.

 City Clerk.

Today's Poem

YOU CAN'T, YOU KNOW

You may lead a horse to water,
 You may lead a lamb to slaughter,
 You may lead a child by kindness
 when he won't respond to force.

You may lead unto the altar
 Any bride without a halter—
 That's provided she's decided you're her Leading Man, of course.

You may lead a few cottillions,
 You may lead the cheering millions;
 You may lead the way to glory—you may also bump the bumps.

Lead astray some fellow creature—
 Lead to prayer, if you're a preacher
 Lead to solemn funny column—or, if you're in doubt lead trumps.

You can lead a girl a merry
 Chase, I'm told, if you are very Very clever; and it's never wrong to lead the Simple life.

But you can't lead conversation
 Into other contemplation
 When the subject of vacation trips is bothering your wife!

First Case of Paralysis

Scottville.—Mason county has a case of infantile paralysis within her borders, the first case to be reported. The little two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sterling, who reside on a farm one mile east of the village of Fountain, has contracted the disease. The home has been quarantined and the little one is getting along nicely under the watchful care of Dr. C. M. Spencer, the attending physician.

SAY, MR. FARMER

When in need of Flour, where do you go to buy it? Rather a direct question, but one of importance to us.

Don't you think it would be to your best interests to use home Flour? If you have wheat to sell, where do you go to get the best price for it? If you are in need of bran, shorts, or other mill feed, to whom do you go for your supply?

These are questions of importance, and worthy of your careful consideration. Think them over carefully, and co-operate with us in making this one of the best milling points in the county.

JOSEPH W. FORDNEY

out and the people engaged in that industry should turn their attention to other lines of trade.

This process of wiping out industries in America that cannot survive without protection would be a mighty serious proposition. Permit the free trade theorists to remain in control, and, soon after the war ends, men in this country will be far more plentiful than employment.

Under the policy of protection, new industries are established and employment is diversified, leaving the laboring man free to choose his own occupation. There is nothing that will do more toward making labor independent than to increase the number of occupations in which it can engage. There is nothing that will do more toward making labor dependent than to limit the kinds of trade which it can follow.

Seek out the country in which employment is not diversified and you will find low wages and low standards of living. I wish to emphasize the statement that the most damaging attack on labor is a free trade argument, for free trade degrades labor, and ultimately brings it to the level of cheaper labor in other countries. How can it do otherwise?

We want industries of every description to be established and to thrive on American soil. We have the area, natural resources and climatic conditions to be industrially independent, to produce at home our food supplies, our clothing and all the necessities of life. From the manufacturers' standpoint, we have everything in America he could desire except cheap labor, and cheap labor is the one thing we do not want. With protective tariff laws, cheap labor is a thing we will not need and will not have.

Nothing set forth in the Underwood tariff law has given encouragement to any industry in the United States. There is nothing in that law to benefit industry or labor. It is a free trade measure conceived upon free trade principles.

The history of the world has vindicated the policy of protection time and time again. One hundred years ago England had high tariff laws, and England was the foremost nation in the point of wealth and accumulation of gold.

England abandoned the policy of protection in 1845, and since then has failed to keep pace with other nations with protective tariff laws, in the accumulation of wealth.

Germany experimented with free trade from 1865 to 1879 and it proved to be a costly failure. During that fourteen years poverty and depression blighted that nation.

What has been history's verdict relative to protection and free trade in the United States? Did this nation prosper and advance when the goods of Europe were brought to our markets, or did we advance when our ports were closed to imports? Let us turn back to Napoleon's time a century ago. All Europe was then engaged in war and Europe's products were kept from the American markets. It reflected prosperity on the United States and caused the establishment of many new industries. That progress and prosperity lasted until the end of the war in 1815, and no longer. The conclusion of peace brought a flood of cheap products to our shores and it stifled the manufacturing industries in this country. This is not based on personal opinion it is the verdict of history.
